

THE APRIL EDIT

Our pick of the best new jewellery and watch launches from designers, brands and manufacturers

India Mahon

India Mahon's designs use a vivid spectrum of gemstones set in precious metals. According to the Yorkshire-born designer, she makes "contemporary jewellery for confident fashion-conscious clients, which is simple, colourful and eminently wearable". Examples include this Colette ring created from recycled 18ct yellow gold and a 5.69ct ethically sourced emerald.

RRP £3,500/indiamahon.com

Scream Pretty

Fashion-led jewellery brand Scream Pretty's latest collections offer a whole host of stackable jewellery pieces, from the Celestial Dome ring set with rainbow stones to its lightning bolt ear crawler.

Turquoise pieces such as these mismatched double huggie earrings, made from recycled 925 silver, tap into seasonal summer trends.

RRP £50/screampretty.com

Giovanni Raspini

Famed for its handmade silver jewellery, Italian brand Giovanni Raspini has released four new collections for SS22. Tuareg nods to nomadic Berber tribes; Butterfly (pictured) introduces pink mother-of-pearl cabochon cut quartz; Silk offers clean lines, silver-plated tubing and die-cast elements; and the Byzantine collection features sculptural silver link designs.

RRP £160–£355/giovanniraspini.com

Elliot Brown

Elliot Brown watches are created for the great outdoors. Its latest design, the new Bloxworth 3HD, has a vapour-blasted dark gunmetal case, a signature basket weave texture on its dial and contrasting Super-LumiNova numerals in a bespoke Purbeck stone colour, with matching hands and batons.

RRP £605/elliottbrownwatches.com

Dainty London

Winner of the Emerging Jewellery/Watch Brand of the Year award at the 2021 UK Jewellery Awards and featured on this month's cover, Dainty London's new collection for 2022, Utopia, is a demi-fine jewellery line featuring earrings, necklaces and cocktail rings.

Each ring is named after a Greek goddess, such as this Athena ring with its pear-shaped stone.

RRP £235/daintylondon.com

Looking for new products? Sign up for RJ's dedicated Products newsletter at retail-jeweller.com/account

Alice van Cal

Jeweller Alice van Cal creates versatile fine jewellery with meaning. Inspired by “spiritual growth”, the Anima necklace has a drop chain pendant featuring a central gemstone, like this vivid 0.45ct emerald, with a chakra pendant, set with seven jewels, suspended from the 18ct rose gold chain. Other gemstone options include pink sapphires, garnets and amethysts.
RRP £1,955/alicevancal.com

Kit Heath

Highlights of the British brand's SS22 sterling silver collection include a necklace with two open-profile embracing hearts in sterling silver and 18ct gold plate. Figaro chain bracelets have been restyled with edgier links and freshwater pearls. The Céleste collection features celestial designs embellished with pavé cubic zirconia and 18ct gold plate while the new Radiance collection (pictured) consists of fanned silver rays.
RRP Earrings, £70; necklace, £85/
kitheath.com

Oranda Stone

Created by London-based founder and designer Denise Louise Barzey-Riley (see our Rising Stars line-up on page 15), Oranda Stone is an independent jewellery brand that offers fine and demi-fine jewellery – from the Persephone cocktail ring with its green quartz stone nestled between signature skulls to more subtle designs like this Lua signet ring.
RRP From £215/orandastone.com

©FABRIZIO STIPARI, SCREAMPRETTY/MARTINEDWARDS PHOTOGRAPHY

Rosie Kent

Jewellery designer Rosie Kent is based in a canal-side mill in Marple, on the edge of the Peak District. Her latest collection, Nebula, is a 9ct recycled gold capsule range of tiny fine stone-set studs and pendants, inspired by clusters of space dust. The earrings are sold as single studs with a 3mm ball screw back in yellow gold and are comfortable enough to sleep in.
RRP £105–£180/rosiekent.com

Francesca Mo

Francesca Mo is an Italian jeweller and architect. Based in Milan, she creates delicate, eye-catching jewels. Statement pieces include her brightly coloured Ghiaccio earring collection, made from handcrafted vibrant glass mounted in 18ct gold, and these Only for You rings, which feature a hidden cubic zirconia or natural stone in the design.
RRP £190 each/francescamogioielli.it